Open project reference letter – Stephen B. Harrison

Technical and strategic startup advisory services

To whom it may concern,

Nium is an internationally active startup based in Great Britain. We have developed a novel method of catalyst production. Our first moonshot was an ammonia catalyst which operates at low temperature and pressure. This improves the energy efficiency of ammonia synthesis and aligns ammonia production with non-fossil feedstocks.

As a vibrant startup, Nium has recently been raising capital. Our fund-raising success up to now has been excellent and we sought to maintain that momentum with validation of strategic approach and updated pitch materials to communicate our value proposition in the most impactful way to financial and strategic investors.

To support our goals, we sought the services of Mr Stephen B. Harrison of sbh4 consulting. We have benefitted tremendously from the contribution Stephen has provided. His willingness to work within our budget, the insights he provided and his ability to cover strategic and technical areas have been extremely valuable, as well as his support to me offering valuable strategic input.

If additional areas of collaboration emerge in the future, we would happily use Stephen's advisory services again. Additionally, we would strongly recommend him for similar engagements.

Yours faithfully,
